THE CLASS OF 1996 DEDICATES THIS YEARBOOK TO OUR TEACHER AND FRIEND LOUIS R. TOSCANO.

A TEACHER AFFECTS ETERNITY; HE CAN NEVER TELL WHERE HIS INFLUENCE STOPS.

HENRY B. ADAMS

Toscano Theorem

One hen, Two ducks,
Three squawking geese,
Four limerick oysters,
Five corpulent porpoises,
Six pairs of Don Alberto's tweezers,
Seven thousand Macedonians in full battle array,
Eight brass monkeys from the ancient sacred crypts of Egypt,
Nine apathetic diabetic sympathetic old men on roller skates with a marked propensity for procrastination and sloth,
Ten lyrical spherical diabolical denizens of the deep who all waltzed around the corner with a quo and a quay and a quibby at the very same time. Toot, toot!

$e^{i\pi}+1=0$

What?! You never heard this one either? My friend, you've been culturally deprived. Actually, I'll confess. I never heard this song in kindergarten. For one thing, I spoke a different language then. No, I used to hear this constantly when I was in college, on Dick Sumner's all night show on Boston's WBZ radio station. He was on from midnight to 6 AM. It was sort of his calling card, and he would break in with it about every hour. What was I doing up at that hour? Probably studying for an exam with my friends, quaffing root beer, and talking about life, and how we were going to change the world. Ah, memories . . . It was twenty-five years ago, and I haven't thought about this song for years. It suddenly came to me out of no-where as I was trying to think for a verse for the square root of 5 a few minutes ago. I'll admit I got stuck half way through the "Nine" verse, but once I remembered the "roller skates", the rest was easy. It's amazing how much useless baggage, how many long-forgotten and broken toys we keep in the attic of our minds. And then one day an incident or a word sets off a long train of thought, and we climb back up to that attic and beneath the dust, rediscover ourselves. And so I was back in Room 210 of Carmichael Hall at Tufts University, with Ken and Jim and Joe and . . . I wonder what they're doing now . . . I wonder if they're still alive.

But I digress . . . Let us close the attic and return to the problem at hand. Ah, yes. We were discussing concavity and the square root of five.

interesting to even think about leaving it.

Leaving reminds us of what we can part with and what we can't,

then offers us something new to look forward to,

UNDERCLASSMEN

"What might be taken for a precocious genius is the genius of childhood. When the child grows up, it disappears without a trace. It may happen that this boy will become a real painter some day, or even a great painter. But then he will have to begin everything again, from zero."
— Pablo Picasso

SPORTS

Serious sport has nothing to do with fair play. It is bound up with hatred, jealousy, boastfulness, disregard of all rules and sadistic pleasure in witnessing violence: in other words, it is war minus the shooting.

Class History

We remember it well. The morning sun sliced through the bus windows as the green leafy trees offered sporadic respite from the glare. The bus had taken the turn into the parking lot, we had become freshman. On that bright September day in 1992 the class of 1996 had entered the building. The building, literally and figuratively, hasn't been the same since.

Behind the standard nervous energy, you could see it in each other's eyes, and you could sense it in each other's voice. Individually, we knew what we were capable of; as a class, we had no idea. As it turns out, our academic achievements are second to none. Six National Merit Commended Scholars, one National Merit Finalist, and early acceptances to some of the top schools in the country all speak for themselves. Our class's achievements in student government are outstanding. We ran the school since the beginning of sophomore year. Our athletics, while mediocre in spots, have generally been outstanding. Field hockey, boys' and girls' soccer all earned spots in the state tournament in the fall season of our senior year. We traveled to Spain, France, Mexico, England, Germany, Slovakia, and Italy. The famous swing band prom of 1995 set a standard of excellence in proms that will never be successfully achieved again. Our parties, well we will have to leave those to the memory banks of all who were there, if they can remember them.

We will remember certain instances in time that, for better or for worse, defined our tenure at MVRHS. The bus pass scandal. The football win over Nantucket freshman year. The untimely passing of two of our beloved teachers, Lou Toscano and Phyllis Sanborn. The S.O.B. column. The revamped tardy policy. The budget battles. Food fights. The debate over the holiday policy. The Blue Ribbon award. False fire alarms. The pre-prom car washes. Refrigerator raiding disco dancers. Eating outside and in the halls freshman year. Watching the O.J. verdict in class.

For those who had him freshman year, the name W. Dougal Herr will always be synonymous with ticks, frogs, ducks, sharks, and sometimes English. Between our ferverous debates, our final projects, and our plummeting behavior grades he peppered us with his incomparable humor and wit. In short, he was the man. After our freshman year he matriculated to the administrative ranks, no longer to teach incoming freshmen but to write them up.

Since that first day, some of us have grown closer, while some of us have found that the person we sat next to on the bus that day has gradually moved away, maybe not sitting in the seat behind you anymore, but in the back of the bus or maybe passing the bus in their car. Academically, athletically, musically, and socially- we have succeeded in all, and although bus seats may have changed, it is apparent the feelings we had that first day have not. As we ramble on in life we will forever remember our time here, and we will never forget the first apprehensive moments of that first day and what we thought.

And in these years of fruitless travel walking through your halls, where death a halo to my steps
and all of you blind witness, was born anew
away from you into studies of my own.
As not to disregard your strife,
in humble speech I say I will not give you titles, as such you gave to me. For here I was a product, lifeless advertisement on your shelves and you forgot to teach my soul
A holocaust of clay molded by conformist hands to bring the world new music from mute echoes in our heads?
Our art is limp and sallow and our speeches
all the same, highly regarded lessons on how to create destruction. For just as we created time we killed all creation, putting bars around a flying mind, boundaries to imagination
But I do not stand on clouds, erect, screaming at your cause, I am just as small as all of us, my shadow just as tall.

maggie and millie and molly and may
went down to the beach (to play one day)

and maggie discovered a shell that sang so sweetly she couldn't remember her troubles, and

milly befriended a stranded star whose rays five languid fingers were;

and molly was chased by a horrible thing which raced sideways while blowing bubbles and may came home with a smooth round stone

as small as a world and as large as alone.

"This morning when I woke up I thought, I'm getting worse.
Or, is it better?" He paused again and cocked an eye at Clemens.
"Are you there? Are you really there? Go on, prove it."

Clemens slapped him on the arm, hard. "Yes," said Hitchcock, rubbing his arm, looking at it very thoroughly, wonderingly, massaging
it. "You were there. For a brief fraction of an instant. But I wonder if you — now."

"See you later," said Clemens. He was on his way to find the doctor. He walked away.

Andrew Fischer

Within the circles of our lives
We dance the circles of the years,
the circles of the seasons
within the circles of the years,
the cycles of the moon
within the circles of the seasons,
the circles of our reasons
within the cycles of the moon.
Again, again we come and go,
changed, changing. Hands
join, unjoin in love and fear,
grief and joy. The circles turn,
each giving into each, into all.
Only music keeps us here,
each by all the others held.
In the hold of hands and eyes
we turn in pairs, that joining joining each to all again.
And then we turn aside, alone,
out of the sunlight gone
into the darker circles of return.

When you jump up in the air the earth weighs that much less. When you land again on both feet the earth feels your weight return and falls back into its orbit. You are a part of your planet's rhythms, waking with the sun, waking and living and breathing, and sleeping with the moon, dreaming, your battery subconscious oozing into adventures you only remember parts of the next morning. The pulse and current of life move through you, quickening when you grow and gain and gallivant through pleasures, or pains that sear at you — and slowing when you nurture negativity, acknowledge agony, feed fear. When your soul dips into the soul of the universe and intuition — sparks fly, angels rejoice. When you learn the world learns, but when you know, that is perfect, because knowledge is the pure stuff, the most precious ore, the basis of this your planet's evolution to divinity. Because whatever your task is, you haven't finished it. You aren't ready to leave and the world isn't ready to let go of you. Stay awhile.

"... Snoopy wrote a note to Charlie Brown. The note said ... he was sorry for all the trouble he had caused ... and that he really wanted to be friends, again.

Charlie Brown gave Snoopy a big hug. 'We love you, Snoopy,' he said.

Snoopy went to find Woodstock right away to tell him that everything was all right now. He gave Woodstock a big hug, and Woodstock chirped happily in his arms.

Then Snoopy danced his own special happy dance. It was great to be alive, even if he wasn't rich and famous."

I've caught a fever and kept it until my body has become comfortably numb and now is the free fall when we used to say take me to another place the car would automatically switch into drive and we would sit back and watch all safe and buckled in our backseat haven as our world speeds by and we watch it on T.V. but when the commercial is over we realize that our hands have now been placed on the wheel and to make up for lost time we shift into overdrive look into the rear view mirror and say this has all been wonderful but now I'm on my way

The first time you ever lose and plummet unsure of what will happen or why it happened. The scared intense feeling of too much adrenaline and too much build up in your blood, making you want to vomit or runaway seems to entrap you, as you succumb to all the adrenaline that forces your mind to just run faster and faster. Faster. The feeling of leaning back your head making mushrooms out of branches. At the same time combatting the dizziness and claustrophobia that takes over every time your head tilts back. Your parents tell you that as a babyyou walked faster, talked faster, and were just faster. But now it is all too slow in the moments that fade as you journey back searching places that were just new now old for that feeling of faster and faster. But now your mind is no longer in that one thought, no longer caught in the groove, because it has skipped and moved on. You don't want to. But it all returns back to one, with that first, that one that will always be. Even though at every corner you never want anxiety, you always learn forward, mind paused, body poised, and let all the fear leap from bare limbs and grab so tight he will never fall. But you always fall because you hang over the pond wanting to fall, praying to fall, craving the confusion of water on your body, with your pores so open to grab whatever comes your way, but you are always again dizzy, always.

All my thanks to: my family, Tim C,; Marshall and Katie; Greg, Brian, and everyone at the station.
Memories: The beach — as seen from MTS. Sunsets, people and parking tickets. Tim's campaign — how many buttons did we make? The water. Senior stresses. Just say no. Mr. Herr's freshmen English class. Broken bones and close up in a wheel chair. The station and everyone in it. Lessons in life from Greg at 2:00 AM. Mr. Toscano, the week at Brian's and life in all its forms.
Things I will always keep in my heart: Marshall and Katie's wedding. The smell of salt air. Late nights and early mornings reflecting at the jetty. The feeling that comes from growing up in such a special place.

"The unfailing rhythm of the seasons, the ever-turning wheel of life, the four facets of the earth which are lit in turn by the sun, the passing of life — all these filled me once more with a feeling of oppression. Once more there sounded within me, together with the cranes' cry, the terrible warning that there is only one life for all men, that there is no other, and that all that can be enjoyed must be enjoyed here. In eternity no other chance will be given to us."

We want to thank Dr. Scotten for his support, the M.V Times, Betsy Corsiglia, Leslie Look, and Matt Reed for their wonderful pictures, and most of all Mrs. Mott and Mrs. Ryan for putting up with us for so long. We had a large staff of dedicated people who stayed and worked through all the arguments. They deserve a lot of respect and praise for sticking with it. Thank you for coming to meetings, making decisions and putting up with each other. Best wishes in future years.

Have you ever seen an inchworm crawl up a leaf or twig, and then clinging to the very end, revolve in the air, feeling for something to reach something? That's like me. I am trying to find something out there beyond the place on which I have a footing.
